Should I of these the liberty regard,
Who freed, as to their ancient patrimony,
Unhumb'd, unrepentant, unreform'd,
Headlong would follow. Milton's Par. Regain'd.
My unrepard, and unrepenting breath,
Was snatch'd away by the swift hand of death. Roscommon.
All his arts reveal,
From the first moment of his vital breath,
To his last hour of unrepenting death. Dryden.
Nor tyrants fierce, that unrepenting die,
E'er felt such rage as thou. Pope's Rape of the Lock.
UNREP'NING. adj. Not peevishly complaining.
Barefoot as the trod the flinty pavement,
Her footsteps all along were mark'd with blood;
Yet silent on the pass'd, and unrepining. Rowe.
UNREPLENISHED. adj. Not filled.
Some air retreated thither, kept the mercury out of the unreplenish'd space. Boyle.
UNREPRIABLE. adj. Not to be repited from peal death.
Within me is a hell; and there the poison
Is, as a feud, confin'd, to tyrannize
In unreprehensible condemned blood. Shaksp. K. John.
UNREPROACH'D. adj. Not upbraided; not censured.
Sir John Hotham, unreproach'd, uncurs'd by any imprecation of mine, pays his head. K. Charles.
UNREPROVABLE. adj. Not liable to blame.
You hath he reconciled, to present you holy, unblameable, and unreprovable in his fight. Col. i. 22.
UNREPROVED. adj.
1. Not censured.
Christians have their churches, and unreproved exercise of religion. Sandy's Journey.
2. Not liable to censure.
The antique world, in his first flow'ring youth,
With gladness thanks, and unreproved truth,
The gifts of foreign bounty did embrace. Fairy Queen.
If I give thee honour due,
Mirth, admit me of thy crew,
To live with her, and live with thee,
In unreproved pleasures free. Milton.
UNREPU'GANT. adj. Not opposite.
When scripture doth yield us natural laws, what particular order is thereunto most agreeable; when positive, which way to make laws unrepugnant unto them. Hosker, b. iii.
UNREPUTABLE. adj. Not creditable.
When we see wife men examples of duty, we are convinced that piety is no unreputable qualification, and that we are not to be ashamed of our virtue. Rogers.
UNREQUESTED. adj. Not asked.
With what security can our ambassadors go, unrequested of the Turkish emperor, without his safe conduct? Kneller.
UNREQUITABLE. adj. Not to be retaliated.
Some will have it that all mediocrity of folly is foolish, and because an unrequitable evil may ensue, an indifferent convenience must be omitted. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
So unrequitable is God's love, and so insolvent are we,
that that love vastly improves the benefit, by which alone we might have pretended to some ability of retribution. Boyle.
UNRESENTED. adj. Not regarded with anger.
The fillings of these holy persons, passed not unresented by God; and the same scripture which informs us of the sin, records the punishment. Rogers.
UNRESERVED. adj.
1. Not limited by any private convenience.
The piety our heavenly father will accept, must consist in an entire, unreserved obedience to his commands; since whoever offends in one precept, is guilty of the whole law. Rogers.
2. Open; frank; concealing nothing.
UNRESERVEDNESS. n. f. Unlimitedness; frankness; largeness.
The tenderness and unreservedness of his love, made him think those his friends or enemies, that were so to God. Boyle.
UNRESERVEDLY. adv.
1. Without limitations.
I am not to embrace absolutely and unreservedly the opinion of Aristotle. Boyle.
2. Without concealment; openly.
I know your friendship to me is extensive; and it is what I owe to that friendship, to open my mind unreservedly to
you. Pope.
UNRESERVEDNESS. n. f. Openness; frankness.
I write with more unreservedness than ever man wrote. Pope.
UNRESTED. adj.
1. Not opposed.
The ethereal spaces are perfectly fluid; they neither assist, nor retard, the planets, which roll through as free and un-rested, as if they moved in a vacuum. Bentley's Sermons.
2. Restless; such as cannot be opposed.
Those gods I whose unrested might Have sent me to these regions void of light. Dryden.
What wonder then, thy hairs should feel
The conquering force of unrested steel? Pope.

U N R

UNRESISTING. adj. Not opposing; not making resistance.
What noise? that spirit's possess'd with haite,
That wounds th' unresisting postern with these strokes. Shaksp.
The sheep was sacrific'd on no pretence,
But meek and unresisting innocence:
A patient, useful creature.
Since the planets move horizontally through the liquid and unresisting spaces of the heav'n, where no bodies at all, or inconsiderable ones, occur, they may preserve the same velocity which the first impulse impress'd. Bentley's Sermons.
UNRESOLVABLE. adj. Not to be solved; insoluble.
For a man to run headlong, while his ruin stares him in the face; still to press on to the embraces of sin, is a problem unresolvable upon any other ground, but that sin infatuates before it destroys. South's Sermons.
UNRESOLVED. adj.
1. Not determined; having made no resolution.
On the western coast
Rideth a puissant navy: to our shores
Throng many doubtful, hollow-hearted friends,
Unarm'd, and unresolved to beat them back. Shaksp.
Turns, unresolved of flight,
Moves tardy back, and just recedes from fight. Dryden.
2. Not solved; not cleared.
I do not so magnify this method, to think it will perfectly clear every hard place, and leave no doubt unresolved. Locke.
UNRESOLVING. adj. Not resolving.
She her aims about her unresolving husband threw. Dryd.
UNRESPECTIVE. adj. Inattentive; taking little notice.
I will converse with iron-witted fools,
And unrespective boys; none are for me
That look into me with confid'rate eyes. Shaksp.
UNREST. n. f. Disquiet; want of tranquillity; uneasiness.
Wife behest, those creeping flames by reason to subdue,
Before their rage grew to so great unrest. Fairy Queen.
Repose, sweet gold, for their unrest,
That have their aims out of the emper's chest. Shaksp.
Dismay'd confusion all possess'd;
Th' afflicted troop, hearing their plot defecy'd:
Then runs amaz'd distress, with sad unrest.
To this, to that; to fly, to stand, to hide.
Silence, in truth, would speak my sorrows best;
For deep sleep wounds, can least their feelings tell;
Yet, let me borrow from mine own unrest,
But time to bid him, whom I lov'd, farewell. Waller.
Up they rose,
As from unrest; and each the other viewing,
Soon found their eyes how open'd, and their minds
How darken'd! Milton's Par. Lost, b. ix.
UNRESTORED. adj.
1. Not restored.
2. Not cleared from an attainder.
The son of an unrestored traitor has no pretences to the quality of his ancestors. Collier on Lucius.
UNRESTRAINED. adj.
1. Not confined; not hindered.
My tender age, in luxury was train'd,
With idle ease, and pageants entertain'd,
My hours my own, my pleasures unrestrain'd. Dryden.
2. Licentious; loose.
The tavern he daily doth frequent,
With unrestrained, loose companions. Shaksp.
3. Not limited.
Were there in this aphorism an unrestrained truth, yet were it not reasonable to infer from a caution, a non-usage, or abolition. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
UNRETRACTED. adj. Not revoked; not recalled.
The penitence of the criminal may have numbered him amongst the saints, when our unretracted uncharitableness may lend us to unquenchable flames. Govern. of the Tongue.
Nothing but plain malevolence can justify diuision. Malevolence shewn in a single, outward act, unretracted, or in habitual ill-nature. Collier on Friendship.
UNREVEALED. adj. Not told; not discovered.
Had ye once seen these her celestial treasures,
And unrevealed pleasures,
Then would ye wonder, and her praises sing. Spenser.
Dear, fatal name! rest ever unrevealed;
Nor pass these lips, in holy silence seal'd. Pope.
UNREVENGED. adj. Not revenged.
So might we die, not envying them that live;
So would we die, not unrevenged all.
Unhonour'd though I am, Dryden.
Not unrevenged that impious act shall be.
Great Pompey's shade complains that we are slow,
And Scipio's ghost walks unrevenged amongst us. Addison.
UNREVEREND. adj. Irreverent; disrespectful.
See not your bride in that irreverent robes. Shaksp.
Fie! unreverend tongue! to call her bad,
Whose sovereignty to our thou hast prefer'd,
With twenty thousand soul-confirming oaths. Shaksp.
UNREVERENTLY. adv. Disrespectfully.
I did unreverently blame the gods,
Who wake for thee, though thou snore for thyself. B. John.
UNREVERSED. adj. Not revoked; not repealed.
She hath offer'd to the doom,
Which unreversed stands in effectual force,
A sea of melting tears. Shaksp.
UNREVO'KED. adj. Not recalled.
Hear my decree, which unrevok'd shall stand. Milton.
UNREWARD'D. adj. Not rewarded; not recompensed.
Providence takes care that good offices may not pass unrewarded. L'Estrange.
Since for common good I yield the fair,
My private loss let grateful Greece repair;
Not unrewarded let your prince complain,
That he alone has fought and bled in vain. Pope.
TO UNRID'DLE. v. a. To solve an enigma; to explain a problem.
Some kind power unrid'dle where it lies,
Whether my heart be faulty, or her eyes! Sackling.
The Platonick principles will not unrid'dle the doubt. Glouce.
A reverse often clears up the passage of an old poet, as the poet often serves to unrid'dle the reverie. Addison.
UNRIDICULOUS. adj. Not ridiculous.
If an indifferent and unridiculous object could draw this ausereness into a smile, he hardly could with perpetuity resist proper motives thereof. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
TO UNRI'G. v. a. To strip of the tackle.
Rhodes is the sovereign of the sea no more;
Their ships unrigg'd, and spent their naval store. Dryden.
UNRIGHT. v. a. Wrong. In Spenser, this word should perhaps be unright.
What in most English writers useth to be loose, and as it were unright, in this author is well grounded, timely framed,
and strongly trussed up together. Glossary to Spenser's Kal.
Shew that thy judgment is not unright. Wisd. xii.
UNRIGHTOUS. adj. Unjust; wicked; sinful; bad.
Octavius here leapt into his room,
And it usurped by unrighteous doom;
But he his title justify'd by night. Fairy Queen, b. ii.
Within a month!
Ere yet the salt of most unrighteous tears,
Had left the flushing in her galled eyes,
She married.—Oh most wicked speed!
Let the wicked man forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord. Ia. lv.
UNRIGHTOUSLY. adv. Unjustly; wickedly; sinfully.
For them
Their foes a deadly Shibboleth devise:
By which unrightously it was decreed,
That none to trust, or profit should succeed,
Who would not swallow first a poisonous wicked weed. Dryd.
A man may fall undeservedly under publick disgrace, or is unrightously oppressed. Collier on Pride.
UNRIGHTOUSNESS. n. f. Wickedness; injustice.
Our Romanists can no more abide this proposition converted, than themselves. All sin, say they, is a transgression of the law; but every transgression of the law is not sin. The apostle, therefore, turns it for us: all unrightous-ness, says he, is sin; but every transgression of the law is unrighteousness, faith Austin upon this place. Hall.
Some things have a natural deformity in them, as perjury, perfidiousness, unrighteousness, and ingratitude. Tillotson.
UNRIGHTFUL. adj. Not right; not just.
Thou, which know'st the way
To plant unrightful kings, wilt know again
To pluck him headlong from th' usurped throne. Shaksp.
TO UNRI'G. v. a. To deprive of a ring.
Be forc'd to impeach a broken hedge,
And pigs unring'd at vit. franc. pledge. Hudibras.
TO UNRI'P. v. a. [This word is improper; there being no difference between rip and unrip; and the negative particle is therefore of no force; yet it is well authorised.] To cut open.
Like a traitor
Didst break that vow, and, with thy treach'rous blade,
*Unrip*st the bowels of thy sovereign's son. Shaksp.
He could not now, with his honour, so unrip, and put a lie upon all that he had said and done before, as to deliver him up. Bacon's Hen. VII.
We are angry with searchers, when they break open trunks, and unrip packs, and open sealed letters. Taylor.
Cato well observes, that friendship ought not to be unrip'd, but unfrithed. Collier.
UNRIPE. n. f.
1. Immature; not fully concocted.
Purpose is of violent birth, but poor validity;
Which now, like fruits unripe, sticks on the tree,
But fall unshaken when they mellow be. Shaksp.
In this northern tract our hoarse throats,
Utter unripe and ill-constrained notes. Waller.

U N R

He fix'd his unripe vengeance to defer,
Sought not the garden, but retir'd unseen,
To brood in secret on his gather'd spleen. Dryden.
2. Too early.
Who hath not heard of the valiant, wife, and just Dori-laus, whose unripe death doth yet, so many years since, draw tears from virtuous eyes? Sidney, b. ii.
UNRIPENED. adj. Not matured.
Were you with these, you'd soon forget
The pale, unripen'd beauties of the north. Addison's Cato.
UNRI'PENESS. n. f. Immaturity; want of ripeness.
The ripeness, or unripeness, of the occasion, must ever be well weighed; and generally it is good to commit the beginnings of all great actions to Argus, with his hundred eyes;
and the ends to Briareus, with his hundred hands. Bacon.
UNRI'VALLED. adj.
1. Having no competitor.
Honour forbid! at whose unripar'd shrine,
Ease, pleasure, virtue, all our sex resign. Pope.
2. Having no peer or equal.
TO UNRO'LE. v. a. To open what is rolled or convolved.
O honor!
The queen of nations, from her ancient seat
Is sunk for ever in the dark night;
Time has turn'd her glorious to his rout,
And now she lies tip-sy on the ground. Dryden's Ann. J. L.
UNROMANTIC. adj. Contrary to romance.
It is a base, unromantic spirit not to wait on you. Swift.
TO UNROOF. v. a. To strip off the roof or covering of houses.
The rabble should have first unroof'd the city,
Ere to prevail'd with me. Shaksp. Coriolanus.
UNROO'STED. adj. Driven from the roof.
Thou dotard! thou art woman-tir'd, unroosted,
By thy old dame partlet here. Shaksp. Winter Tale.
UNROUGH. adj. Smooth.
Sward's son,
And many unrough youths, that even now
Protect their first of manhood. Shaksp. Macbeth.
TO UNROO'T. v. a. To tear from the roots; to extirpate; to eradicate.
Since you've made the days and nights as one,
To wear your gentle limbs in my affairs,
Be bold; you do so grow in my requital,
That nothing can unroot you. Shaksp.
Unroot the forest oaks, and bear away
Flocks, folds, and trees, an undistinguish'd prey. Dryden.
UNRO'UNDED. adj. Not shaped, not cut to a round.
Those unli'd pistolets,
That more than cannon-shot avails or lets;
Which, negligently left unrounded, look
Like many-angled figures in the book
Of some dread conjurer. Denne.
UNRO'YAL. adj. Unprincipled; not royal.
By the advice of his envious counsellors, he sent them with unroyal reproaches to Muidorus and Pyrocles, as if they had done traitorously. Sidney.
TO UNRU'FLE. v. n. To cease from commotion, or agitation.
Where'er he guides his finny couriers,
The waves unruffle, and the sea subsides. Dryden.
UNRU'FFLED. adj. Calm; tranquil; not tumultuous.
Vent all thy passion, and I'll stand its shock,
Calm and unruffled as a summer's sea,
When not a breath of wind flies o'er its surface. Addison.
UNRU'LED. adj. Not directed by any superiour power.
The realm was left, like a ship in a storm, amidst all the raging furies, unruled and undirected of any; for they to whom she was committed, faint in their labour, or to seek their charge. Spenser.
UNRU'LINESS. n. f. [from unru'y.] Turbulence; tumultuousness; licentiousness.
By the negligence of some who were hardly to be commanded, and by the unruliness of others, who without leave were gone a-shore, so fair an occasion of success was neglected. Knol.
No care was had to cure the unruliness of anger, or the exorbitance of desire. Amongst all their sacrifices, they never sacrificed so much as one lust. South's Sermons.
UNRU'LY. adj. Turbulent; ungovernable; licentious; tumultuous.
In sacred bands of wedlock ty'd
To Theron, a loose unru'y swain;
Who had more joy to range the forest wide,
And chace the savage bent with bulky pain. Fairy Queen.
Down I come, like glitt'ring Phaeton,
Wanting the manage of unru'y jules. Shaksp. Rich. II.
The best and foundest of his time hath been but rash;
then must we look from his age, to receive but unru'y waywardness. Shaksp. K. Lear.
The tongue is an unru'y evil, full of deadly poison. Jo. iii.
Thou dost a better life, and nobler vigour give;
Dost each unru'y appetite controul. Roscommon.
